

Niṣkāma

*Your ancient bones
Know what they were made for.*

*You are a single blade of grass in a field of many.
A leaf on the forest floor,
Withering away into the earth.
A slick patch of ice melting in April.*

*Just as the sun must rise,
You too - must wake from sleep.*